Customer Privacy Statement

We have built our business on a foundation of integrity, honesty, and trust. These values are reflected in our longstanding commitment to protect your privacy. To provide the service you desire, we may have reason to share your personal non-public information with those affiliated and/or nonaffiliated third parties with whom we do business. How we collect and share information is outlined in this privacy statement.

1. We collect nonpublic information about you from the following sources:
 - Information we receive from you on applications and forms.
 - Information about your transaction with us, our affiliates, and others.
 - Information we receive from customer-reporting agencies.
2. We may disclose public and nonpublic information about you, while you are a consumer, customer, or former customer to the following parties:
 - Financial service providers, such as banks and credit unions.
3. We do not disclose your public or nonpublic information about you to any other affiliates or third parties besides those listed above.
4. We restrict access to nonpublic personal information about you to those representatives of America's #1 Auto Buying Service who need access to that information to provide services to you. We maintain physical, electronic, and procedural safeguards that comply with federal regulations to guard your non-public personal information from unauthorized access.
